Volunteers for Office Work

There's a call for help right here in Hope in connection with the National Defense program. Free legal counsel is provided draftees in the form of an Advisory Committee, O. A. Graves, E. F. McFaddin and Royce Weisenberger. But the great bulk of conscription work is the filling out of questionnaires for the men. And local authorities need volunteers to help with these questionnaires. If you can help, apply to Hope city hall.

In answer to the first call for volunteers three replied, Miss Sue Hendrix, Mrs. C. B. Presley and Grover Ward. There have been a few more since.

But many are needed.

Local conscription authorities would like to have a staff of two or three persons on duty at all times. The larger the total number volunteering the less work each person will have to do. Enough ought to volunteer so that no one person has to be on duty more than once a week.

No special training is required to handle these questionnaires. Workers will have the questionnaire explained to them at their first session—and then the workers can help the boys fill it out.

But a great number of volunteer workers are needed, because it takes about an hour to fill out each questionnaire.

The nation wants to know a great many things about every man who is mustered into military service. These questions have to be asked, and the answers have to be written down.

The boys will do their bit. But right now we need volunteer workers from the rest of the population to help the boys get their family information on paper.

If you can help please report to the city hall.

'Bobcats Leave for Game With N. Little Rock

High School Band and Many Fans Follow the Team Friday

The Hope High School football team left here Friday enroute to the capital city for a conference game with the North Little Rock Wildcats Friday night.

The Bobcats are all in good shape and have worked hard all week in preparation for the battle. Before leaving Coach Hammons said that his boys would put up a tough battle and will be fighting to win all the time.

The 65-piece High school band will be on hand to cheer the Bobcats along with many fans who will follow the team.

Wildcats Ready

LITTL EROCK — Coach Bob Cowan's North Little Rock High School Wildcats will seek their fourth victory of the season and their third in succession against the Hope Bobcats at Wildcat Stadium at 8 Friday night.

After a disastrous start, the Wildcats came through with victories over Camden and Benton the past two weeks. The other triumph was over Russellville in the second game of the season. Hope, coached by Foy Hammons, has won only one game this season.

Class in Auto Motors Here

Should Apply to Arkansas Employment Service

A fifth industrial class—teaching auto motor rebuilding—will be started in Hope as part of the national defense program as soon as enough young men volunteer for the course in instruction, it was announced Friday.

The automobile engine course, to be given in the plant of Hope Auto company, will be recruited through the Arkansas Employment Service, Walnut and Second streets, and men desiring to take the course shoul dapply there at once.

Notification of the new course was given Clifford Franks, secretary of the Hope School Board, by Fred Graham, assistant state supervisor of vocational education of defense workers in the State Department of Education, in a letter dated Thursday at Little Rock.

The school board passed authority on to R. E. Jackson, vocational instructor in the local schools, who is working in conjunction with the local industries and the Arkansas Employment Service.

Students are recruited through the Arkansas Employment Service, are passed on by a committee of industrialists and craft foremen, and are then put through the course on actual machines in local plants.

The first four courses, started earlier this fall, are teaching two types of welding, and molding and pattern-making, in the plant of the Arkansas Machine Specialty company, North Walnut street.

Now They Travel in Circles

ANDERSON, S. C. —(AP)— The aluminum hands on the town clock already have traveled 200,000 miles, although they have not yet made a single circuit of the dial.

Shortly after the courthouse renovation program began, T. A. Widington was given a contract for some new aluminum hands for the clock.

Widington, after spending several sleepless nights over the problem of obtaining aluminum when the national defense program might offer an obstacle, remembered his old automobile, which had traveled 200,000 miles. There were many aluminum parts.

Widington figures that if the clock stays in operation 50 years the minute hand will not have traveled as far as it did during its automotive days.

25-Day Fight Proves Loss to Fascists

Greek Kingdom Displays Flags in Victory Celebration

ATHENS —(AP)— The capture of Koritza, key base in southern Albania from which the Italian columns drove into Greece 25 days ago, was announced triumphantly Friday by the Greek government.

It came as a climax of a bitter warfare in the rugged mountains of the Greek-Albania frontier in which hard-fighting Greek troops first checked and then hurled back the tide of invasion.

"Our heroic troops after hard fighting entered Kortiza Friday triumphantly," the communique said.

Jubilantly the government ordered flags displayed throughout the little kingdom, dispatches from Salonika and elsewhere told of the exited populace eagerly discussing the latest victory. There were no details of the fate of Italian forces which defended Koritza, but it was reported that large number was captured.

Italian Acknowledge Loss

ROME —(AP)— Italy acknowledged Friday the loss of Koritza, base in southern Albania from which the Italina army launched its invasion of Greece 25 days ago.

Eleven days of bitter fighting in which Italian losses were "considerable" and those of the Greeks perhaps even heavier preceded the abandonment of the city, the high command announced.

Condition of Woman Serious

No Improvement Shown by Gunshot Victim Here

Josephine hospital attendants said Friday morning that Mrs. Merritt Cox of near Rosston, who was wounded with a shotgun at her home late Wednesday night, had not shown any improvemen, and "is in a very bad condition."

Conflicting stories told by Mr. and Mrs. Cox and Master McNatt, also of Rosston, continued to baffle state police who are still investigating the shooting.

McNatt was arrested here Thursday by Sargeant F. V. Haynie, of the state police, and turned over to the Nevada county sheriff who had a warrant, issued by Merritt Cox, husband of the wounded woman, for McNatt's arrest. He was later released on bond.

According to a story told to local police, McNatt said that Cox shot his wife, and, according to a statement from Mrs. Cox, which was later affirmed by her husband, McNatt fired a shotgun through the door of the Cox home, the shot hitting Mrs. Cox in the side and hip. According to Mrs. Cox, McNatt had been at the Cox home earlier, had an argument with her husband, and left for his own home. Upon McNatt's return the shooting occured, Mrs. Cox said.

Further investigation by State Policemen Roland Rumble and F. V. Haynie showed that two guns had been fired, one from the outside and one from the inside, the officers said.

Propaganda Seen in "American" Organizations

Second of three articles telling the real story of German and Italian fifth column activities as directed by axis diplomats in the United States.

By BRUCE CATTON
NEA Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON — In a government department there works a girl who studied in Munich a couple of summers ago. Recently this girl found herself on a Nazi mailing list, getting batches of propaganda literature every so often.

She took it as a joke, but finally showed the material to her boss. He advised her to take it to the Department of Justice, just to make sure that she herself might not get suspected of subversive activities. She did so. The FBI men thanked her and said they were already familiar with the kind of literature she was getting. The story ends there . .

Except that immediately after that, the mailing of German literature to her ceased abruptly.

Berlin Scoffs at Dies

BERLIN—(AP)— The Dies Committee report is worth "exactly three short laughs," said authorized sources Friday commenting on the "White Paper" issued by the Committee, a group of the U. S. House of Representatives.

In other words, some German agent had a pipeline good enough to find out instantly when a minor government clerk took a case to the authorities.

That's a sample of the way the fifth column has spread. In a very small way, it indicates what the Dies Committee experts believe has happened on a large scale all across America.

These experts say that there are German agents, stooges or buddies in most of the government departments in Washington, in most navy yards, and in most of the important dehidden transmission lines by which money, information and agents can be sent in and out of the important defense-production factories.

There is an incredible propaganda net-work which operates through almost innumerable "American" organizations.

"Innocent" Beginnings

How did all of this happen?

Who started it, and when?

It began shortly after Hitler came to power in Germany. First steps were taken by such innocent-looking organizations as the Friends of New Germany. This organization evetually developed ito the notorious German-American Bund, according to testimony before the Dies Committee by Fritz Kuhn, the nod-imprisoned New York Bund leader, and Dr. Otto Wilhmeit, Chicago Bund leader.

Parallel with this came special visits of propagandists. One of the most noted was Dr. Colin Ross, who went about the country delivering lecturers. Many of these were sponsored by the Kyffhauserbund, a league of ex-German soldiers, which was organized in 1937 and now, according to the Dies Committee records, has branches in Pennsylvania, New York, New Jersey, Massachusetts, Michigan, Connecticut, Texas and Illinois.

This Kyffhauserbund, incidentally, serves a dual purpose. It holds innumerable propaganda meetings — Dies Committee records, for instance, cite one held in Philadelphia addressed by Erich Windels, the German consul there, which closed with the Nazi salute and the singing of the Horst Wessel song and was attended by 500 or more American citizens. It also keeps the German consuls informed on the activities of ether German-Americans. In this way the consuls

Adopted Son Kills Parent

Foster-Father Dead and Mother Badly Injured

DESARC, Ark. —(AP)— A middle aged farmer was slain, his wife was seriously injured ,and their 20-year-old adopted son was held under a first degree murder charge here Friday as the result of a violent domestic quarrel in the Sand Hill Community, one-half mile north of here, late Thursday.

Sheriff F. L. Grady said the youth, Alfred Vincent, had signed a confession that he killed his foster father, A. N. Vincent, 48, with a shotgun and hit Mrs. Vincent, about 45, in the head with a hammer in an outburst of rage that followed his foster mother's reprimands for his excessive drinking.

Vincent died about 11:30 Thursday night. Mrs. Vincent is in a critical condition at a Searcy hospital. Attendants said she had a chance to recover.

Rotarians Will Help Hospital

Hope Club to Canvass Hempstead Co. for Cripples

Plans for a county-wide drive in support of the Tri-State Hospital for Crippled Adults at Memphis, which is supported by the Rotary clubs of Arkansas, Mississippi and Tennessee, and the general public, were outlined before Hope Rotary club Friday noon at Hotel Barlow by W. Fred Bradford of Camden, past president of the Arkansas district of Rotary, and now president of the Memphis hospital.

The Hope club followed up his plea by electing Robert M. Wilson as director of the Hempstead county campaign. Club President Lyman Armstrong then named the following committee to work with Mr. Wilson: Roy Anderson, Finis Walker, Giver L. Adams and A. H. Washburn.

A guest Rotarian Friday was Jack Lowe, of Gurdon, now of Hope.

Carpenters Are Needed Here

Finish Carpenters Are in Demand for Jobs

Blaine Ellington, manager of the Hope office of the Arkansas State Employment Service, reports that they have a number of unfilled openings calling for finish carpenters.

At the present time there is no demand for Rough Carpenters but any carpenter who is qualified to do finish work should leave his application with the Employment Service. The specifications state that each carpenter must have a full and complete set of carpenter tools, must be able to pass a rigid physical examination. Defective eyes, ears, or heart will bar any man from this work.

Any carpenter who can meet the above specifications should call at the Employment Office located at 201 East Second street, having his Social Security card with him.

Hitler Talks With Rumania

BERLIN —(AP)— Rumania's Premier, and foreign minister arived Friday and was immediately received by Adolf Hitler for talks that are expected to lead to Rumanian adherence to the Rome-Berlin-Tokyo Axis.

The Rumanians, General Ion Antonescu and Prince Costin Sturza, engaged in lengthy conversations with the Fuehrer at the Chancellery where they were accorded military honors by the Nazi guard before proceeding to Hitler's private quarters, the official DNB news agency announced.

It was taken for granted that Rumania would join the anti-British totalitarian bloc.

U. S. Planes Used

LONDON —(AP)— American made Lockheed-Hudson bombers pounced on the German airfield at Stavanger, Norway, Friday morning in a destructive attack which was "as slick as it was heavy" the air ministry announced Friday.

The raid was carried out as German planes returned to the assault on England after being grounded during the night by dirty flying weather, and the official announcement said that two Nazi raiders were downed.

The Voices That Shouted 'Peace!'

The tumult and the shouting of the campaign die away, but there is one shout that must echo and re-echo in the President's mind as he sits alone to think of his tremendous third triumph. Yes, presidents sit alone sometimes. In fact, despite the constant impingement of problems and persons, the presidency is a lonely job, and all presidents have felt it keenly.

The shout that cannot die out of the President's mind is the shout of the American people for peace. He cannot forget that the one thing both in his own addresses and those of his opponent that always touched off a roar of spontaneous approval was any passage that gave hope of keeping our great land at peace.

He cannot forget that of around 22,000,000 Americans who voted for the opposing candidate, many, many of them so voted because they thought peace might thus be best preserved. He cannot forget that his own specific pledges of peace, so long as peace is permitted us, were the passages which drew the deepest response.

Neither candidate could honestly have made or kept a pledge that "under no circumstances whatever will the United States go to war." Neither did so. War or peace the near future is not so much a matter of conscious American decision as of circumstances, and the acts of others. Yet a strong and determined will to peace can do much, and the American people have that will.

The campaign showed equally clear support of American foreign policy as revealed in action. There was no basic difference between parties here, and Mr. Willkie's post-election statement shows clearly this unity. Exactly where this course will lead us, no man can precisely prophesy. The conduct of human affairs is not a mathematical science. But the course has been charted by the pilot and confirmed by passengers and crew.

We stake our chance of peace on strength to defend ourselves. Before the Revolution we were unprepared—yet war came. Before the War of 1812, the same. Before the Mexican War, the same. Before the Spanish-American War, the same. Before the World War, the same. Each time we were unprepared—yet the war came. About the only time the United States faced a great crisis in armed strength was in 1867, when the finest army in the world backed the ultimatum to France to get out of Mexico—and there was no war.

This time we propose to prepare, hoping that this will serve us for peace, since unpreparedness has so often failed to prevent war. The nation is united in determination to gain strength in proportion to its great power. To the death it will defend its soil, its interests, its free way of life.

But it is peace the American people want—to keep peace if they can; to join war only if they must. Those great deep-throated shouts from both sides of the whole campaign reveal it clearly. Above the shouting and exultation of triumph may be heard clearly the voices that cried "Peace!"

WE, THE WOMEN

Husbands Are Explained—Much Too Late

By RUTH MILLETT

It must seem odd after having been married for years to discover that a psychologist warns young women against marrying the very kind of man one is already tied to by love and law.

And yet this is bound to happen often.

Now She Can Blame Parents

Mrs. X. who married an "only child" finds that the psychologist say only only children aren't good matrimonal risks. Until she read that she had just shrugged off her husband's faults with "That just like Henry" or the more inclusive "That's just like a man."

Now she can see that all his shortcomings are caused because his parents had no other children.

Mrs. Y.—after reading that the child of quarrelsome parents is a poor matrimonial bet—decides that's why George got so upset only that morning because there was a button off his last clean shirt. She has found an explanation for every other grouch that ever descended or ever will descend on George.

Are these women, and all the others who discover belatedly that they have assumed poor matriomonial risks, going to be better wives for knowing that fate was against them from the start?

The answer is probably "No."

Whatever Happens, Husbands Lose Out

Whenever anything goes wrong in the marriage, Henry or George will be to blame.

And if the marriage is all right, the wives will be all puffed up because they managed to make a good marriage out of a bad risk.

Poor men, whose wives find out they were betting on a hundred-to-one shot when they said "I do".

CONCERNING BUTTONS — AS A matter of information to local housewives, certain facts about buttons should be considered. Pearl Buttons, made from mother of pearl shell, have proved their superiority over every other type of button. No other button combines the durability, lustre and beauty of pearls. It is important, therefore, that you examine carefully the buttons on wash garments you buy. If they are Pearl Buttons you can be certain of the service they will render, and you can be assured that their presence is a sign of quality in the garment itself. See that all wash garments you purchase have Pearl Buttons.

French Ship Joins British

Huge Battleship Joins British at Gibraltar

ALGECIRAS, Spain (AP)— A French battleship of the same type as the Paris was reported Thursday night to have entered Gibraltar and surrendered to British authorities. The battleship was anchored at the entrance of the port.

France at the outbreak of war had two battleships of the Paris class, each of 22,189 tons—the Paris and the Courbet. All previous accounts agreed that the only French battleship known to be left at large after the British turned upon the French fleet at Oran July 4 to prevent its falling into German hands was the 26,5000-ton Strasbourg.

The Strasbourg fled the July 4 battle of Oran and escaped to Toulon. The Paris, the courbet and the 22,189-ton Lorraine were reported by the British some time ago to have fallen into their hands after the French-German armistice.

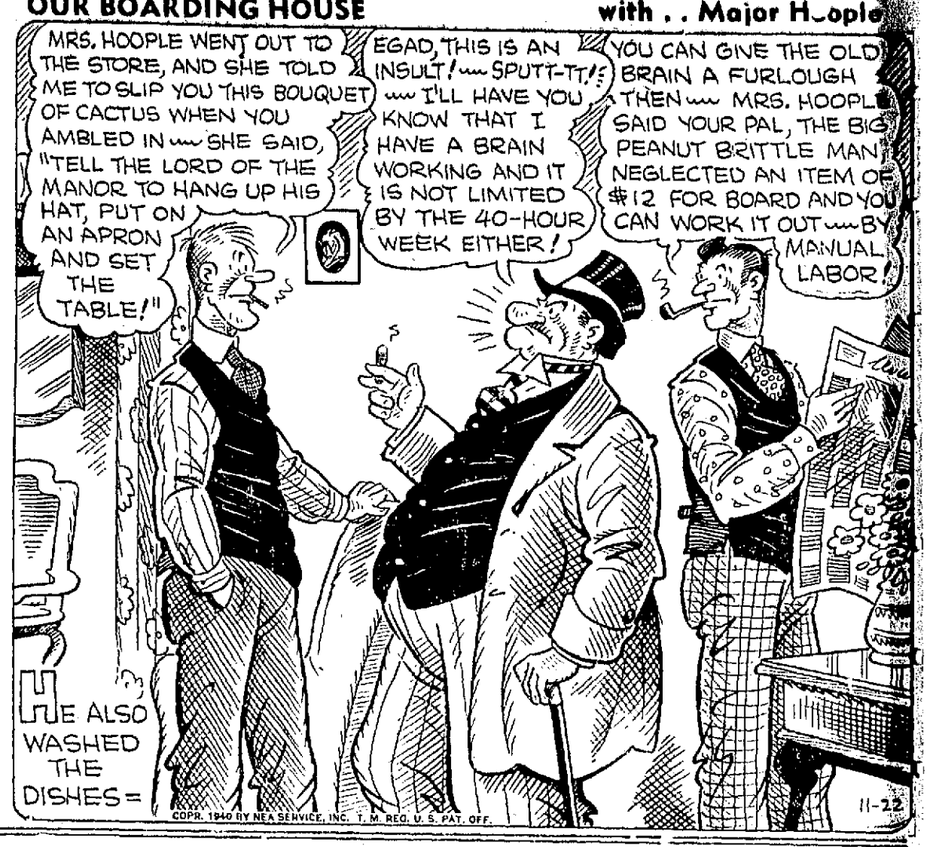

All this raised the possibility of confusion of identity at Algeciras and made it appear that the vessel reported surrendered might have been the Strasbourg.

ANDRE MAKES PLANS

CHAPTER V

"WHE-E-EUW!"

Andre Girardeau breathed that, then turned slowly down the arched corridor leading from the Pueblo U. administration building to the library. He went only a few feet before he halted, though; he felt that, for personal as well as professional reasons, he simply must have another and better look at the Mexican girl.

The bespectacled man was at her left, helping her to walk. With her right arm she handled her one crutch clumsily.

Andre decided her act was none too convincing. But he also decided that any sort of act was unimportant; what really impressed him was the appearance of this girl.

"M-M-M-m-m-m!" Andre gave murmured tribute again, already sensing the pleasure when he should meet this girl.

He saw her perfection of teeth, lips almost too carmine. He noted the way her hair clung to her head in ringlets, swept low and backward.

He saw, too, that her initial touch of haughtiness had faded when the bespectacled man came to escort her from her car; patently, then, this lady responded to masculine attention. Without being seen at least more than casually, he slipped on down the archways and out of her sight.

HE walked along the shaded avenue toward his hotel. An irrigation canal there made a rippling rivulet, beautiful in reflecting the trees as well as giving them life. At a lovely rustic bridge he paused a moment to study his image in the quieter pool. He smiled at himself; he, Andre Girardeau, should be able to enjoy this assignment, with a beautiful senorita and with Ronica Bailey both as protagonists in his little drama. He wasn't bad looking; not at all.

He adjusted his tie, whistled a little softly, meditatively, and walked on. He reasoned next that he would have to set himself up in some dude ranch nearby to give outward excuse for his presence in and around Pueblo. The idea was distasteful, but he supposed he would have to ride a horse some in the western way, and no doubt listen to tall tales of Indian massacres and such. However, when he should form his contact with the Mexican girl boredom ought surely to vanish.

"If this goes smoothly I can net a quarter million or better and then skip out," he reminded himself. "With that much I can probably take my choice—ha! Maybe—maybe Mexico City itself wouldn't be so bad. As safe there as anywhere."

He knew no particular fear. A conceited man seldom does, because conceit is but exaggerated confidence. Anyway, it was more pleasant to meditate on which of two lovely girls he should choose for permanent companionship. It simply did not occur to him that the Mexican senorita might not care for him.

He purchased a sporty new car during the next hour, and with proper directions drove out a few miles to the expensive Rancho del Sol. There, as a business man from New York, he could be a typical dude guest, loafing the autumn weeks away. It would give him adequate front.

He tried to telephone Ronica and learned that she was not on her father's ranch. He tried the college, with no better results. It ocurred to him then that she would be somewhere on the campus and so he drove back there.

HEARTY young collegians seemed to be everywhere but he recognized none of them. Some of the co-eds were definitely interesting.

He asked a few if they knew where to find Ronica Bailey. They knew about her, but not where she was.

He kept looking for another glimpse of the Mexican girl, and while he did see several others of obvious Latin heritage, he did not see that particular one. He wished he had heard her name distinctly, somehow, soon, it would be his move to approach her and make himself acquainted, but that would have to be handled with infinite tact, at least so far as public eyes were concerned. It must appear entirely natural, normal.

He did see the bespectacled young professor once, striding across the main campus court with four books on his arm, but was not interested in that gentleman.

When he was back in his car, Andre drove in a filling station to be sure of his fuel supply, and there encountered a youth as talkative as his kind is likely to be, especially out west.

"You hear the news?" the youth asked, between windshield swipes. "About the Pueblo girl?"

"I beg pardon?" Andre was democratic only by effort.

"Yep. College girl from right here at old Pueblo, by George! Plenty of the old nerve, mister, let me tell you! They say she didn't even take a gun out there, but when the right minute come she—Why how-de-do, Miss Montoya!"

A second car had driven up to the pump and Andre found himself instantly deserted. He had paid his bill anyway, and his windshield hadn't really needed cleaning. He glanced out. Something about that name Montoya had caught his interest and—there she was again!

The same girl. First time he had seen her a bespectacled professor had jumped to help her. Now, obviously, she had a filling station lad enslaved.

"Iss so sweet of you, Jimmee," she was saying, musically, "you come so queek to help me."

"Aw, I'm supposed to, ma'am. Anyway, I—well, gee! Say, have you heard the news, Miss Montoya?"

"News, Jimmee?"

"Sure! One of your own Pueblo girls. Gosh, maybe you know her! Her old man's the big airplane builder. Name of Bailey, ma'am."

"I have only coom here wan week myself, you know, Jimmee. But what is it that—?"

"Aw, sure, that's right. Well this Miss Bailey, she was—"

Andre, straining to hear, caught no more of it. A roadster piled high with collegians rolled up honking behind him and through their hilarity someone broke into a college song. All he could do was drive out of their way.

There is some great needs in these last times, of which the greatest is an old fasion revival.

It is possible for a person to live and be happy without a home, and in poverty and hunger but if destitute of a revival spirit, he is an invalid, weak, sick, and miserable if not already dead.

A church may get by and thrive without a building, without a choir, without a fine piano, expensive pews, but without a revival it is like a house in zero weather without a fire.

Towering mountain high, above all other needs, educational, political or financial, is the need of a revival to all who are destitute of its power.

Revival Catechism

What is a revival of pure religion?

It is such a cleansing and quickening of believers as leads to the conversion of sinners.

Why do church members oppose revivals?

Some because they are unconverted, others because they have been prejudiced against true revivals by their knowledge of spurious ones, and others still because they are holding on to some sin which they would be pressed to give up should there be a genuine revival, and still others because they are not willing to make the sacrifice upon which the coming of a revival is conditioned.

We are beginning a revival at the Unity Baptist church next Sunday, November 24.

We have been having a revival in our regular Sunday meeting and we feel the time is ripe for a special effort to be made.

You come to this revival and you will be happy, you will feel at home and you will go away with your soul full of the Lord's Spirit.

Girl Was Too Busy but the Boy Sure Liked It

A Pfenture Service

HOLLYWOOD — Two big moment in every young actress' life is supposed to be when she gets her first professional kiss, but Gene Tierney, a blond newcomer, appears to be different.

After her initial clinch she was asked what she thought about.

"Absolutely nothing," she said.

It was a normal day on the "Hudson's Bay" set. The secene was a love bit between Gene and John Sutton. There was a long rehearsal of lines. Director Irving Pichel would say each time, "And here John kisses you, and we cut." Finally the scene was shot. Gene ended up in Sutton's arms.

"Cut! " said Pichel. "We'll try it again."

They tried it twice more.

The scene was okayed. Gene started for her dressing room when it suddenly dawned on her—

"Heavens!" she exclaimed. "I've been kissed.

"I've heard so often of the first kiss that I was all prepared to go through the thrill process myself. But I guess I was too busy."

And what about Sutton?

"Gosh," he said, "I thought it was swell."

Teachers Take State Title

Bears Whip Arkansas Tech 25-0 for Championship

CONWAY, Ark. —(AP)— The Arkansas State Teachers' College Bears cinched the state collegiate football championship here Thursday by routing Arkansas Tech, 25 to 0, before 3000 fans as Conway celebrated Thanksgiving.

The Teachers grabbed the lead in less than two minutes after the kickoff when Ed Burton intercepted Charley Steed's pass on the third down and traveled to the Tech 15 on a 30-yard gallop. Burton swept around right end to score from the 11 one play later.

Burton almost soloed in making the next touchdown in the first period. He gained 11 and 13 yards, respectively, on two plays and then score on a 40-yard pass from Heath.

The Bears marched 66 yards for their second-quarter tally. Starting on his 34, Heath rammed center for five and tossed a five-yard pass to Phillips. Heath passed to Billy Burton for 16 and then plunged to Teach's 39. Bobby Ellen skirted end for 13 and Billy Burton gained three yards on a pass from Heath. Strickland pounded the lnie twice and Heath dropped a pass in the end zone to Phillips for the score.

The Teachers made their last touchdown on the second play of the final period when Billy Burton galloped 40 yards to score after taking a Tech punt.

Thompson, Tech halfback, furnished the visitors their only offensive spark. He romped 34 yards in the third to the Teacher 6 for the only major threat. Sossaman attempted a pass which Heath intercepted and ran 97 yards over the Tech goal but the play was called back on a ruling that Heath ha dinterfered with the pass. The Tech threat then fizzled.

When the final whistle blew several of the opposing players started swapping punches and before order was restored several hundred students and fans had swarmed out on the field. There were no casualties from the melee.

Christman Ends Great Career

Personally Stomps Kansas in Final M. U. Game

COLUMBIA, Mo.—(AP)—Playing his final game for Missouri against the Tigers' most ancient rival, Kansas, Paul Christman passed for one touchdown, plunged for two and set up all but one of the others in a 45-to-20 victory Thursday.

When Christman left the game in the final quarter with the clock still showing four minutes to go the 17,000 homecoming spectators rose for a standing ovation. He loped to the bench to greet his father with "Dad, I've had enough," then returned to the field after the contest to be given the game ball by his teammates.

It was the first time in 49 years of rivalry that Missouri had won three times in a row from Kansas, it was the Tigers' 10th straight victory on the home lot an dthe scoring total of 65 points was the highest in the rivalry.

Ten times Christman cracked into the Kansas line for a gain of 50 yards. He passed 13 times, completing eight for 167 yards.

Christman was denied another touchdown play in the fourth quarter when Jim Starmer caught his pass in the clear and ankled to the one-foot and then deliberately stepped out of bounds so that Myron Counsil, injured senior fullback, might score on a plunge.

Columbus Wins Boys Game

However, Guernsey Cops Three Other Cage Contests

On Tuesday night, November 19, the Guernsey "Blue Devils" clashed with the "Tigers" of Columbus on the latter's court in a four-game program that got under at 7:00 o'clock and ended at 10:30.

In the first tilt the Junior Girls of Guernsey swamped their smaller and less experienced opponents to the fast tune of 56 to 2, with Forward Wanda Martindale hanging up 14 field goals and one free basket for a grand total of 29 points.

But the senior boys of Columbus bagged the chief game of the evening in the second combat, hanging up their third scalp of pre-senson play in as many starts by trouncing the visitors by a rather top-heavy score, 44 to 16.

The third contest saw the Lady Cats outclass their enemies from Guernsey by a count of 35 to 19. Guard Downs and Forward Edwards played best for the Lady Blue Devils, the latter making 10 of her team's 19 points. Forward Stout, Griffin, and Sula Woolsey, with 12, 8 and 11 markers each respectively.

In the final game of the night the Guernsey Junior team downed the Columbus Juniors 22 to 9.

Friday night of this week Washington will go to Columbus to try to humble the Tigers and break their winning streak.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

We Must Prepare Our Own Hearts To Receive the Seed of God's Word
Text: Luke 8:4-15

By WILLIAM E. GILROY, D. D.
Editor of Advance

The title of this lesson, 'Attitudes Towards the Gospel Message," rightly interprets the real point and meaning of a great parable that has almost universally been wrongly titled. This so-called "Parable of the Sower" ought really to have been called the "Parable of the Ground," or the "Parable of the Hearer"; for its lesson is not "Take heed how ye sow," but "Take heed how ye hear."

The parable was a favorite method of Jesus in His teaching and preaching. Sometimes today those who read the Gospels seize upon this to point out how simple was the teaching of Jesus, how much it appealed to the people and how easily it was understood.

A keener reading, however, would show how incorrect this is. The parables seem simple in their story form, but almost invariably those who heard Jesus were somewhat puzzled. The story may have taken hold in their minds, but they did not understand what it meant; so they asked Him again and again to interpret the parable and make its meaning plain.

The Christian truth contained in the Gospel and in the application of the Gospel to life is deep and varied. It cannot always be made simple. There are things that ought to be made so clear that he who runs may read; but there are other things in the Gospel that reveal the fullness and richness of their meaning only through study and meditation and prayer.

The way of the Christian life is not morally or spiritually easy. Truth is a quest, and those who would know and understand the truth must be willing to take pains and make sacrifices that they may know and understand.

But to get back to the parable Jesus interpreted. It is a parable for hearers. The seed sown is the word, but in human hearts and minds is the ground. God has broadcast the seed very widely, but if our hearts are stony, the seed will not take root or produce anything. If the ground will be no growth or harvest. But if we take the seed of God's word and truth into deep and honest hearts, it will bring forth fruit manifold.

This parable at least seems clear and plain when we put all the emphasis upon the hearer. To make it a parable of the sower would be to prevert the real truth; for if the sower considered too much the ground he might not sow at all. Or if he watched to see whether every seed were taking root, he might become discouraged.

So far as sowing is concerned, the truth is expressed in the verse of a well-known hymn:

"Sow in the morning thy seed,
at eve hold not thy hand;
"To doubt and fear give thou no ear;
"Broadcast it o'er the land."

It is the fact that the seed of God's truth is so widely broadcast that makes it important that we should carefully consider and prepare the ground of our own hearts.

Will Greece Fall to Axis?

Present Ambassador Knows Country Well

By JACK STINNETT

WASHINGTON — Will Greece fall to the Axis?

Will Lincoln MacVeagh, United States envoy extraordinary and minister plenipotentiary to the land of Homer and Socrates, become another minister without a country?

If those questions are answered in the affirmative, then Lincoln MacVeagh will grieve deeply indeed. No representative of the United States has more thoroughly and whole heartedly adopted any country than MacVeagh has adopted Greece.

For seven years, this quiet, scholarly New Englander has been our chief diplomat in the shadow of the Acropolis. His love and knowledge of Greece, however, date much farther back than that—at least 30 years back—when as a student at Harvard, he became engrossed in the Greek classics.

Knows Every Village

Long before he was appointed to his post, MacVeagh knew his Greece from Crete to Macedonia. Since then, he has traveled over almost every foot of it, going by donkey over the rough mountain trails and on walking tours through the less rugged sections. There is a story in Greece that there is not a town or village in the country where MacVeagh has not stayed the night. There is a saying that even the Greeks go to MacVeagh for out-of-the-way information about their country.

When MacVeagh looks up at the Acropolis, he sees not the ruins that are familiar to almost every schoolboy, but the majestic marble beauty of the temple which was the inspiration of Pericles and adorned by Phidias, one of the greatest of the immortals among the sculptors. He knows every catastrophe that befell the temple down through the ages to bring it to its present tragic state.

When MacVeagh stands on the hills above Marathon, he hears Miltiades haranguing the Athenian generals and inspiring them to that battle fervor that made it possible for a handful of Greek wariors to drive into the sea a Persian host which outnumbered them ten to one and to write into history the first great battle which changed the course of the world.

When MacVeagh, seven years ago, presented his credentials to the government, he spoke up in informal but perfect modern Greek.

That, say friends here, is how our envoy and minister to the latest country to hear the roar of Axis guns knows his Greece.

World War Major

Lincoln MacVeagh was born 50 years ago in Narragansett Pier, R. I. He attended both Groton and Harvard and in those years became acquainted with the Roosevelt family. He attended the Sorbonne in Paris for a year and went into the Army, rising to the rank of major during the World war and being cited for courage under fire.

When he came back to the United States, he entered the publishing business in New York and after a brief period with a publishing firm struck out for himself in the MacVeagh Publishing Co., a company known in the trade and out for good bindings and fine writing.

During this time, MacVeagh lived in Connecticut and commuted. Friends recall that he always carried a copy of Homer in the original in his pocket to read during hours on the train.

After his appointment in 1933, MacVeagh became best known at the State Department for the humor and wit he would get into his dispatches. The files are full of them. But of late, his messages and reports have been entirely lacking in witticisms.

If Greece goes, Lincoln MacVeagh will be, at least, a man without an adopted country.

Unhappy Soldier's a Poor Soldier, So They Have Fun

One of a series taking a draftee into Uncle Sam's new army.

By MILTON BRONNER
NEA Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON — Relatives of John Q. Citizen may fear that in his idle moments the new soldier, through sheer boredom and loneliness, will get into mischief.

The War Department, through the Morale Division attached to the office of the adjutant general, is trying to obviate any such danger, for the officers realize that an unhappy soldier is a poor soldier.

At most of the big army posts there is already or soon will be an army service club. This is what its name implies and is for the buck privates and the non-commissioned officers.

The outfit will be a real club with reading rooms, supplied with books, papers and magazines, a writing room, where dances can be held, a library and a cafeteria where the draftees can entertain their visiting relatives and friends.

In many instances there will be near this club a guest house where relatives of soldiers may put up for the night at a reasonable charge.

Each army service club will have a senior hostess, aged between 40 and 50, and two junior hostesses between the ages of 25 and 45. They must be well educated and have previous experience in a similar occupation. They will be paid by the government. They will arrange dances at which girls from the near-by town will be welcome and will be well chaperoned.

The army library service will have libraries with about 5000 carefully selected books at the big camps and traveling libraries which will serve the smaller posts. Trained librarians paid by the government will be in charge.

The draftee will not miss his movies. There is an army motion picture service, which will present movies at all the camps. Soldiers will get a book of 10 tickets for $1.40. Some of the movie big tents will seat as many as 2000.

The men themselves will be encouraged to pick talent from their ranks for the holding of amateur dramatic shows, athletic contests, football and baseball games, and also song evenings. An army song book is being prepared for circulation among the draftees.

The Morale Division recently held a referendum among regular army soldiers as to the songs they like. There were no votes for any of the naughty ones of the last war like "Mademoiselle From Armentiers."

The 10 which got the top votes were "America," "God Bless America," "Star Spangled Banner," "Home on the Range," "I Am an American," "My Buddy," "The Caissons," "The Last Round-up," "You're in the Army Now," and "Carry Me Back to Old Virginny." These and similar songs chosen by the "regulars" will be in the draftees' song book.

Nazi Agents

can and do exert pressure to compel adherence to the Nazi platform.

No Bets Overlooked

Most notorious case of that kind developed in Texas, where the editor of a German-language paper (a loyal American citizen) got a threatening letter from Baron Edgar von Spiegel, German consul-general in New Orleans, warning him of Hitler's vengeance if he did not stop printing anti-Nazi material.

While these organizations were developing, other avenues were laid open. Fritz Wiedemann, German consul in San Francisco, became notorious for his propagandist activities; it was under his wing that Prinz Kurt zur Lippe, a thoroughgoing Nazi propagandist, set up shop as a lecturer on "the European situation." Gerhart Westrick cultivated business men from the German consulate in New York. Scores of lesser lights were brought over—business men, students and the like.

Try to Enlist Americans

Every effort was made to cultivate native American organizations that displayed Nazi-like tendencies. When the retired Maj. Gen. Frank Van Horn Mosley was quizzed by the Dies Committee about his abortive efforts to launch a semi-Fascist organization, he testified that in 1934 the German ambassador, Hans Luther, went to Atlanta to visit him. William Dudley Pelley told the committee that when he started his Silver Shirts, a Nazi emissary came to him and offered to subsidize the outfit by having 15,000 German-Americans join up—at $10 a head.

Fritz Kuhn himself testified that the German-American Bund had "worked sympathetically" with numerous native organizations. Among these, he said, were the Christian Front, the Christian Mobilizers, the Christian Crusaders, the Social Justice Society, the Silver Shirt Legion, the Knights of the White Camelia, and divers Italian, Ukrainian and White Russian groups. Publications of Pelley and Father Coughlin, the Dies Committee found, were standard reading in Bund camps and headquarters.

"News"—With Axis Flavor

The dealings with organizations of that caliber were tolerably crude, of course, and there is little indication that the Nazis expected much more of them than a chance to spread propaganda and race hatred. Considerably more ambitious were the jobs attempted by such propagandists as Dr. Manfred Zapp, head of Trans-Ocean News Service.

Technically, Trans-Ocean was what its name implies—a news service. Actually, as the Dies Committee investigators found out after raiding its New York offices, it was a clearing house and nerve-center for a vast network of propaganda and espionage work.

Zapp took orders from the German embassy and made frequent reports to it. His activities were keyed in with the work of such respectable organizations as the German Library of Information Service, and the American Fellowship Forum. Much of the money his office received came direct from the various German consuls in this country.

All the time, of course, there has been the closest co-operation between Nazi agents in this country and the agents of the other axis partner, Italy.

Band Concert

clear notes of "God Bless America" rang out through a well filled auditorium. The house roared with applause while the band quickly followed up with "I'm An American", Rag," and "Thunder March."

The last two numbers, which were the most effective of all, were "Something About a Soldier" and "The Star Spangled Banner." As the latter was being played a mamoth American flag was slowly lowered to the center of the stage. As each note was played it sent a chill up the spine of every person in the house. As the echos died away each person stood cheering and thanking God that he lived in a free country—free from air raids, merciless killings, and above all, free from censored schooling, journalism, and entertainment.

Remmal Young, city manager for Malco, wishes to take this opportunity to thank Thomas Cannon, Director of the High School Band, Briant Bundy, and Bobby Barnett, both members of the band and the staff of Malco's Saenger and Rialto theatres for the wonderful efforts, made and accomplished, in creating the stage scenery for this occasion.

Vultee Plant Strike-Bound

Work Still Halted on 84 Millions' Worth Planes

DOWNEY, Cal. —(AP)— Negotiations to end the seven-day United Automobile Workers' strike at the Vultee aircraft plant collapsed Thursday when conferees reached a deadlock over a no-strike clause in a proposed union agreement. Maj. Sidney Simpson, War Department labor adviser, said all other features of a settlement had been approved.

"It included a two-year contract covering wages and working conditions. The company wanted an agreement that for the duration of the agreement there would be no strikes," he stated. "The union refused. The company then proposed that the negotiations be continued for another week and if no agreement was completed then, the dispute should go to arbitration."

When union representatives declined to accept this proposal, Major Simpson said, the company spokesman left the conference room.

The War Department adviser, who flew here last Sunday, said he would remain for a while "to see what the War Department may be able to do to effect a resumption of work."

The strike, which began last Friday in support of union demands for an increase from 50 cents an hour in minimum wage brackets to 75 cents, threw 5,200 employes into idleness and halted work on $84,000,000 worth of military airplanes.

Wyndham Mortimer, international representative of the United Automobile Workers, said: "When Vultee representatives walked out today, they carried with them the responsibility of reconvening these meetings."

Richard W. Millar, Vultee's president, informed Major Simpson the company was still "ready and willing to negotiate or arbitrate, subject to immediate call." He agreed to another meeting Friday. Major Simpson said he would attempt to bring both sides together then.
